At the Sepulchre—1865.

BY MRS. JULIA C. R. DORR.

Lo! we come,
Bearing the dead year cold and dumb!
Pile of above the mighty tomb!
Lo the hosts that have marched their rest
Hushed are, the grandly speaking lips,
Closed are the eyes in their eclipse
And the sculptured limbs are deadly still,
Responding not to the reader's will,
As we cast
Bearing the dead year cold and dumb!

Lo we wait
Knocking here at the sepulchre's gate!
Souls of the Ages passed away
A mightier joins your ranks to-day
Open your doors and give him room
Building century's king our tomb!
Forth, duly, unlike kings, they fall
Sleepeth the kingliest of kings all,
While we wait
At the sepulchre's awful gate!

Place yet her
Beating, low over the narrow bier
Lines yet, while I wait for the night
Come yet, they will be back with morning
Lo! on his knees weeping and pale
Think of the world's hopes have flown,
Think of the future left alone
Of the mighty we bear! I dare speak,
Lift the lady
Lying, low on the narrow bier!

Gently lay on
Proudly Century's king, not mute
Now what his weary work left
Human and frail he will bear
Lo! on his knees weeping and pale
Hoarse to follow, we will be by
Lift him, lift him to his lofty place
Nobly! Gently! Softly!
Make way
For the kingly dead! Hush! silent tomb!

Stones for Bread.

I sometimes wish that clergymen would study human nature more, and their libraries less. If they would less often try to unravel some double twisted theological knot which if pulled out straight would never cut a single drop of balm to comfort—follow Young or Beecher, learn how to lean bravely and patiently the trials under which souls and bodies are ready to fail, if, instead of uttering lectures before them on a Sunday they would preach only to its wistful asking for spiritual help, in words easy to be understood—in short learn not to be mistaken—how different would Sunday seem to many women at least, whose heart aches, and unshrived burdens none but their Maker knows. "Bring Bibles!" I tell our clergymen never forget that phrase in their abstruse examination of text and context. Let them not forget that as Lazarus watched for the falling crumbs from Dives's table, so some poor hungry soul before them may be sitting with expectant ear, for the hopeful words, that shall give courage to shoulder again the weary burthen.

I sometimes wonder were I a clergyman, could I preach in this way to nodding plumes and flashing jewels and rustling silks? Would not my very soul be paralyzed within me as I looked down to be? And then I wish that ushers (could own velvet cushioned pew in church that the doors of all churches were open to every man and woman, in whatsoever garb they might come to worship, and not parcelled and locked off for the reception of certain classes, and the exclusion (for it amounts to that) of those who most need spiritual help and teaching. You tell me that there are places provided for such people. So there are—pews for colored people to rent. In My Christianity if I have any built up no such walls of separation. How often have I seen a face loitering at a church threshold listening to the swelling notes of the organ and longing to go in were it not for the wide and gulf between itself and those who assembled—I will not say worshipped—there. And I know if that clergyman, inside that church spoke as his Master spake when on earth, that he would soon preach to empty walls.

They want hassle they pay handsomely for hassle and they get them. I ask in my vision of the dim aisles on his knees in some poor creature's face, and he wrestles forth to struggle unaided as best he may with a poor man's temptations. Our Roman Catholic brethren are wiser. Their creed is not my creed, save this part of it. "That the rich and the poor meet together and the Lord is the maker of them all." Often go there to see it. I am glad when the poor servant drops on her knees in the aisle, and makes the sign of the cross that nobody hids her rise to make way for a silken robe. But may be wing behind her. I am glad the mother of many little children may drop in for a brief moment, before the altar, to recognize her spiritual needs, and then pass out to the cares she may not longer lost sight of.

I do not believe as they do, but a glad is as heart all the same that one man is as good as his neighbor is not there—before God. I breathe freer at the thought. I can sit in a corner and with them pass in and out and rejoice that every one, poor humble sinner feels that he or she, at a church just as much as the richest fortune from the coffer-lids of the old world, whom they may rustle in passing out. Said one poor girl to me: "I don't care what hap pens to me, or how hard I work through the week if I can get away to my Sunday morning prise—she was a woman to be sure, and women, high and low, have more spiritual discernment. They can do without their church—sometimes, I am sorry to say not even with it, for, as the same servant solemnly and truthfully remarked to me, "I reckon the devil is sometimes too strong for us!"

FANNY FERN

A Sonora Story.

The following rich story is retold by a Sonora paper, at the expense of a cigar genius who visited between that town and Oregon as showman, with a menagerie of curious troupe and wonders, hoping to make a fortune selling the curiously mechanical, does not always come off first-rate.

Frank Bell, traveling in a vehicle bearing a strong resemblance to a peddler's cart. Old lady rushes out from house by roadside. The following colloquy ensues

Old Lady—Say, what have you got to sell?

Bill—I am traveling agent, madam for the greatest menagerie of antediluvian and modern times, which is slowly in its exhibition in this section affording to the inhabitants thereof an opportunity of viewing the most stupendous collection of animals ever before exhibited

Old Lady—You don't say! Have you any elephants?

Bill—We have, madam, six elephants, but these constitute a comparatively unimportant part of the show. We have living specimens of bipeds and quadrupeds, who roamed over the earth, not only in the antediluvian but also in pliocene and postmiocene periods, including the megatherium, with six legs and two tails, the ichthyosaurus, with four eyes and three tails the pterodactyl, with no eyes, two noses and four tails, the plesiosaurus, resembling Satan in shape, which spits fire and brimstone and sulphur and many other species, too numerous for enumeration. We also have a pleiosaurus.

Old Lady—Well, I declare.

Bill—But madam the greatest curiosity by far of our exhibition, is a black and cheerful educated monkey, who was brought up a Mohammedan priest in the mysterious regions of the Great Desert of Sahara. This monkey speaks with fluency all the modern languages, besides Latin, Greek and Hebrew. He can repeat the ten commandments, the emancipation proclamation, President Lincoln's last message, and performs the most intricate examples in mathematics with rapidity, ease and accuracy. While being exhibited in Washington he actually repeated a long speech of the President. This monkey corresponds—

Beautiful young lady suddenly sticks her head from window and calls out

"Mother! mother! ask him why they let the monkey travel so far ahead of the other animals!"

A little fellow going to church for the first time, where the pews were very high, was asked on coming out, what he did in church, when he replied "I went into a cupboard, and took a seat on the shelf."

A Boy's idea of having a tooth drawn may be summed up as follows "The doctor hitched fast on to me pulled his best, and just before it killed me, the tooth came out"

One of our friends has a little boy some four years old who has been in the habit of repeating the Lord's Prayer at his mother's knee before retiring. A few nights ago he came to the words: "Give us this day our daily bread," when he added, sotto voce, "candy too," (candy too,) so fervently loud to catch his father's ear. He found it in his stocking next morning. He evidently had not got over Christmas

Extensive Land Shark Operation.—In St. Louis, a few days ago, a piece of property, valued at $100 000, was sold for $1,100 to pay an assessment of $671 00 levied upon the owner for certain street improvements. The property was bought by a couple of well known land sharks who have refused $10,000 for their title. The owner now sues for his real estate in the courts

Mrs Partington says that she, having become very much enamoured of a siren of Boston, has laid her to the mental altar. He did not appear the least discomposed. On the back of his wedding cards were little cupids with wings

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

FINANCIAL.

Office of the Morning Herald,
Titusville Saturday Eve Dec 30 1865

The present scarcity of money is felt in all more especially in Titusville, which has never been subject to any stringency in the regard. The causes of this are to be attributed to the purchase of the greater portion of our bonds by the Government loan, which amounts in the vicinity on the aggregate to the sum of over four millions of dollars. They subscribed to this knowing that New York per cent. interest and is free from Government tax.

The withdrawal of this large amount from circulation has had a very serious effect in producing a stringency in the market for the holders will not sell or convert their the present value being slight per cent. below par. The remedy for this would be that the Government call the securities. We understand that strong influence will be exerted in the present Congress to place a tax on these securities notwithstanding the pledge of the government to the contrary. Should this be done it would immediately put them into circulation and relieve the money market.

We only look to the tax of $1 00 on each barrel of oil as another pulling using cause of this stringency for it has in the oil regions caused a suspension of over two thousand wells, whose average production was each from three to five barrels per day making a diminution of the receipts of over seven thousand barrels per day. This matter will also come under the consideration of the present Congress. We would recommend that if crude oil is to be taxed at all it should be done upon the principle of a sliding scale, which should bear very lightly upon small producing wells, and in proportion upon the larger ones

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

Titusville Saturday Eve December 30

The petroleum markets remain inactive. There are large quantities of oil offering but no takers and nothing upon which we can base our quotations. The trade appears to be stagnant for the present. Refiners all over will have already form made to meet existing contracts up to 1st of January. The oil is being removed rapidly as the limited facilities of the O C R R will admit. The necessity of wholesome competition in this respect is severely felt. No matter how strenuous the exertions on the part of the performance of the arduous duties of that institution it fails to meet the constantly accumulating demand for the transportation of oil. The high rates under such circumstances is a natural consequence of this condition of affairs. Now that the plan for taxes from Titusville to this city, which we have so strongly advocated, are about to be speedily put into operation it will be an absolute necessity to have another road and the sooner our capital is awake to this fact the better. Other subsidiary conditions being made to bear. We point to a great oil center, with no oil rails.

NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE®

Titusville Morning Herald.

Titusville, Monday, Jan. 1, 1866.

Editorial.

New Year's Day is the index, on the Dial of Life, which, as of the hope of time.

Hope is a narcotic, to which we become addicted, as the opium eater to his drug; while we are disposed to rest in a lethargic repose under the influence until life by some hard fact which pierces it from our dream. The return of this anniversary always sounds in our startled ears "the knell of departed hours," and awakes us to a momentary conception of the dignity of life, as the ghosts of our dead years pass in solemn review before us, mocking us with opportunities neglected or with weaknesses committed, and causing us, sick at heart, to turn to the future as our only hope of retrieving the errors of the past.

It is a fitting time for retrospection just as the last proofs of the old year have passed from our hand, while the forms are locked up and gone to press, where the errors of the past are being inexorably stamped upon the record of our lives, and we are about opening the fresh volume of a new year.

What have we done? What has been the character of our influence? Have we hesitated when we should have spoken, or spoken when we should have been silent? Have we allowed wrong to go unrebuked, or have we seen truth struggling with error or virtue with vice, without uttering a word of encouragement? Have we observed evil, covering its hideous deformities in shining garments and intruding with brazen effrontery among the good and pure to contaminate by the foul breath of suspicion, or to drive away contentment by base and cunning insinuations, without stripping the fiend of his counterfeit guise and exposing the cheat?

These are questions applicable to all—the high, the low, the rich, the poor, and to which each one must render a correct return before the bar of Truth.

For ourselves, personally, as journalists, our record is before the public and need not be repeated. Suffice it to say, that what errors may there be found, we believe to be those of the head and not of the heart—however much our judgment may have been at fault, our intentions have been good; and

"He who does the best his circumstance allows,
Does well, acts nobly; angels could no more."

We have no promises to make for the future further than what is implied in our career in the past, viz: In political matters, for a more vigorous support of the Union and for such an administration of the National Government as shall harmonize with the fundamental idea of our immortal Declaration of Independence, which proclaims the civil equality of all men, with their title to those inalienable rights among which we class life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

We interpret the meaning of the tremendous struggle from which we have just emerged, to be for a broader extension of FREEDOM and JUSTICE, without distinction of class or color, to the better exclusion of oligarchies and monopolies of every description; and while in politics that creed known as the Republican expresses more nearly than any other our sympathies and convictions, we propose to be tied to no clique or party in favor of any public measure or candidate, beyond the dictates of our judgment and our convictions of right; claiming the privilege not only of differing in matters of policy with those with whom we may agree in principle, but also of criticising, with candor and fairness, the acts of all public servants.

But our best energies now, as heretofore, are to be devoted to local matters, for the development of the munificent resources with which Nature has so wonderfully endowed our section of country, and by means of which this wilderness is made to blossom as the rose. All enterprises devoted to that end may expect our earnest support; while all schemes for swindling, or fraud in any form, may look for no mercy at our hands. The material affairs, the best interests of our young and thriving city will continue to be kept steadily in view; and by the rigid test of the PUBLIC GOOD, every measure claiming our support must be tried.

We started our enterprise of publishing a daily paper in Titusville against the judgment of many of our best citizens, whose sympathy and support have, however, constantly been with us, and for which we tender our grateful acknowledgment; and to those kind friends whose unwavering faith and devoted constancy have cheered us from the beginning, we are more deeply indebted than words can express—they can draw on us at sight for any amount in the treasures of the heart.

Commencing our daily issue on the 14th of June, it was found to be necessary to enlarge at the close of the first quarter, and now our space for reading matter is so much cramped that we are compelled to enlarge again, which we shall do as soon as the materials can be obtained.

Permit us in conclusion to thank all with whom we have been connected for their kindness, their indulgence and their forbearance; and while in our thrusts at wrong, surrounded as we must be, by the hustle and bustle of business, we may not always be able to temper with accuracy the severity of the blow, or adjust with precision the lancet of the lash, we shall look with confidence for the same kindness and forbearance in the future, in case our stroke should miss the intended victim, falling short upon a mere accomplice, or passing beyond to wound the innocent.

Conviction of Murder—Dr. John W. Hughes was convicted, at Cleveland, last Friday, of murder in the first degree in killing Miss Tamzen Parsons at Bedford, a few miles west of Cleveland, on the 9th of August, 1865. The circumstances of the crime were peculiar. Dr. Hughes, a married man with one child, had settled in Bedford, where he gained the affections of Miss Parsons, a girl of seventeen, and affected her ruin. They fled to Pittsburg, in December, 1864, where a forged divorce was exhibited and a form of marriage gone through, and where Hughes was arrested for bigamy. He was sentenced to the penitentiary of Pennsylvania, in January, but soon pardoned through the agency of an deserted wife. The infatuation of Tamzen Parsons still strong upon him, he sent his wife and child to England, their native country, and continued his illicit suit, meeting, however, the opposition of Miss Parsons and of her family. Baffled, disgraced and stung to madness, he took to drink, and ended the complication in a murder committed in open day upon the main street of the village. Dr. Hughes is a man of thirty-nine years, of superior education and refined manners, and has borne himself through the trial with a firmness that was not shaken even by the dread sentence.

The State Debt.—A remarkable feature in the forthcoming report of the State Treasurer will be the fact that the debt of Pennsylvania in 1865, is just four hundred and ninety-three thousand five hundred and eighty-seven dollars less than it was in 1864. When the public consider that this decrease took place during a period when the ordinary and extraordinary expenses of the State were largely increased by the drain of the war to suppress rebellion, the achievement approaches the marvellous, and speaks louder than words in favor of the energy, economy and integrity of the executive officers of the State, and of the virtue and liberality of the people.

It has the reversible feed, feeding the cloth either to the right or left, to stay a seam or to fasten the ends to the seams. It takes four different stitches, the Lock, Double Lock, Knot, and Double Knot—each being alike on both sides of the fabric. Its motions are all positive; sews the thickest or thinnest fabrics without change of tension. Hems any width hem, fells, braids, quilts, binds, gathers, and sews in a ruffle at the same time.

CARVER'S

DOUBLE ACTING

OIL PUMP.

This pump consists of two barrels, one within the other, and each having its separate valves and working independently of the other. The action is

DOUBLE,

and as much oil is raised at the

DOWNWARD

as at the

UPWARD STROKE.

THE DOUBLE SET OF VALVES

allows the FREE ESCAPE of gas through one or the other of the barrels, without affecting the pumping and thus enables the pump to work without obstruction in wells where the common pump cannot be worked at all.

AN IMPROVED PISTON

of double the strength of the old one has been invented which will be supplied FREE to all parties using the old sliding valve in these pumps. These pumps have now been used on over one hundred wells, and we give below a few of the testimonials we have received, and ask a careful perusal of the same.

TITUSVILLE, Nov. 27, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:

I am now using Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump in a well belonging to the Pennsylvania Oil Co., and can pump more oil with less power than with the common pump, and without interruption from gas, breaking of sucker rods, &c. It is far superior to any other pump, in my estimation, for pumping oil, as it does not affect its working.
N. J. TOMPKINS,
Superintendent.

ELLENVILLE WELLS, Watson Flats, Oil Creek, Pa., Nov. 25, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:

I have used and been acquainted with the working of Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump in our wells and in other wells during the past summer and fall. I consider the pump far superior to the pumps in common use in oil wells, and have no hesitation in saying that it will raise double the amount of fluid from a well with a given amount of steam than can be raised with a common pump.
JOSEPH A. SCOTT,
Supt. Ross Farm.

OFFICE OF ÆTNA OIL CO., Oil Creek, Pa., Nov. 27, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:

I have used in our wells and been acquainted with Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump for the last five months. In one of our wells it was impossible to work the common pump on account of the gas. Carver's pump worked without difficulty in this well. I think Carver's pump will pump twice as much oil as any other pump with the same amount of steam.
CHAS. LANING, Supt.

UNION WELL, West Hickory Run, Pa., Nov. 26, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:

We pumped the Union Well, on West Hickory Run, about twelve days with the pump ordinarily used in oil wells and could not obtain to exceed one barrel of oil per day. About the 25th of Sept. last we put one of Carver's Double Acting Petroleum Pumps into the well, and the quantity of oil was immediately increased, and the well is now producing 25 barrels per day.
T. M. FOSTER.

GARVIER WELL, Pioneer Run, Oil Creek, Pa., Nov. 24, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:

This well was pumped about six weeks with the common working barrel, giving an average production of about 30 barrels per day. The gas in this well was so strong as to keep us idle about one half the time repairing sucker rods, walking beams &c. We then introduced Carver's Double Acting Petroleum Pump and pumped it eleven weeks without being stopped for repairs, &c., to exceed two days in all. During this time the production of the well was brought up to an average of 70 barrels per day, and on some days 80 barrels. This pump worked without any interruption from gas.
GEO. C. HARTLETT, Supt.

SCANDER FARM, Petroleum Centre, Nov. 30, 1865

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:

This is to certify that I commenced operating the Mc Clay well, McCray Farm, about the first of April last, and after testing it for five months, in which time it was tubed over 50 times—ascertained that the best it would produce was ten barrels per day, not to exceed four days per week, being disabled by breakage of sucker rods and machinery, at least two days each week. I then put in one of Carver's Patent Double Acting Pump, which increased the daily yield within two weeks to 20 barrels per day, which is the present production per day. It is over two months since the sucker rods have been taken out or even the slightest breakage occurred. I have at present eight of these pumps in operation and would use no other.

OFFICE OF THE MAPLE SHADE OIL CO., Oil Creek, Nov. 30, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:

We are using Carver's Pump in the Coquette and Polly wells, and propose to introduce them into all our wells, as we consider them to be the best pump made for pumping oil, and will therefore use no other.
W. H. GOODWIN,
Supt. Maple Shade Oil Co.

New Year's comes like Christmas, Thanksgiving Day and General Training, but once a year, and we know our kind readers would not ask our compositors, pressmen, and the "wa," to work when all "the rest of mankind" were enjoying their "otium cum dig," their New Years Calls, Parties, Balls, &c. Therefore, consequently, and in consideration of such a condition of affairs, no paper will be issued to-morrow.

Public Address.—We desire again to call attention to the fact that our Carriers will deliver their "Address" this morning, and it is to be hoped that their efforts will be attended with success.

The Pithole Record says "John G. Saxe is coming to Pithole next week, to give two lectures in behalf of the friends of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His standing as a lecturer is so well established that no comment is necessary."

Our readers will find in our advertising column the card of Mr H. L. Muse, Jeweler on Spring Street. He offers to buyers great inducements. His stock is well selected and comprises all that is usually found in first class establishments in that line.

Billiards.—To night a match game will be played at the splendid rooms of the Crittenden Hotel, between Mr A. R. Peck, of Baltimore, and B. N. Curtis, of Rochester. The game will be 500 points up, carom table, for $100 a side—good playing may be expected, as both gentlemen have a good reputation among the knights of the cue.

Correction.—In our remarks on Friday concerning Mr Wilder, we had no intention of reflecting upon his department or character by mentioning his name in connection with the "ignorant switchman." We are happy to inform the public that Mr Wilder enjoys the confidence and esteem of his superiors, and, so far as we know, that of all with whom he is connected.

Col. Munson, on Franklin street, with an energy that is highly commendable was prepared all day Saturday to fill the orders of all who called on him for those delicious bivalves, yclept, oysters, and those who expect to add to their Bill of Fare for to day's dinner, oysters stewed, oysters fried, oysters scalloped, or oyster fritters, should call early. The stock in town is light and in few hands.

New Year's Hop.—The lovers of the Terpsichorean art are to celebrate New Year's night by having a Grand Hop at Crittenden Hall. Messrs W. S. Winsor and J. J. McGrum constitute the Committee of Arrangement, and Messrs Chas Cassel, P. T. Witherop and Fred Cheshire, the Reception Committee.

The music is to be by Tomkins' Full Opera Band, and the Happy New Year will be inaugurated by a good time.

New Year's Day is the appropriate time to commence keeping a journal of current events. What can afford more satisfaction than to refer to a well kept diary, whilst this a faithful record of each day's events proves of great value. Messrs R. C. Clark & Co, Spring street, have a varied and beautiful stock of Pocket Diaries, bound in all the styles that the ingenuity of the artist could suggest. These enterprising merchants propose to make it worth any one's while to call on them if they want a first rate diary.

Tax on Oil.—The Venango Spectator says—"Judge Casey writes from Washington that if a good, intelligent, energetic delegation of oil producers is sent to Washington to "back up" members of Congress, upon the subject, the tax can be reduced from 25 to 50 cents per barrel. He does not think the tax will be entirely taken off. We are of an opinion that the amount of reduction will be in proportion to the backing up furnished by members. That's the way things are done now-a-days at Washington."

Post Office.—The attention of our readers is called to the notice that Mr Barber, our efficient Post Master, publishes to day, in regard to the mails. We hope he may be able to announce before long that he can dispatch two New York mails per day. There is not another office of the importance of ours in the country that has not two mails every twenty four hours to the great commercial centre of the country. If a merchant receives a letter from New York at noon, he cannot mail an answer to it till a whole day has elapsed. This is a serious evil. As long as the railroad connections at Corry are as at present there is no help for it. But we live in hope that better things are in store for us.

The American Farmer.—We have received the first number of the above new monthly publication, by John Turner, Rochester, New York. It succeeds the Genessee Farmer, published for nearly a quarter century in the same flourishing city and finally merged in the American Agriculturist of New York City. The intelligent and thrifty farmers of Western New York, however, require a paper, and Mr Turner's initial number promises to meet the want. Our Pennsylvania farmers are also recommended to give it a trial. The subscription price is only one dollar per year, and a single number contains a hundred times that worth of practical information.

Crack House, Pittsburg.—Some kind friend has intended to do us a favor by sending by mail the Bill of Fare at this well known house, for December 26, 27 and 28. It is all very fine, but we cannot dine off a Bill of Fare when what it represents is so far away, and out of date. That we received the bill for January 1st, 1866, we might have tortured the affair into an invitation to prove what our capabilities as a "trencher man" are, but while our friend, Fred Stewart, presides over the destinies of the McCrey House we shall have little cause to regret that such favors as those are not dated ahead. As a matter of-fact person suggests, in looking over the said Bill of Fare, that putting down Codfish cooked in Dutch style, as "Codfish a la Holandaise," and Macaroni, as "Macaroni, a la Milanaia," is pretty on French side, that are somewhat Dutchy and a little on the Celtic order.

Culver Literary Association.

The first regular business meeting of this Association will be held at the Reading Rooms over the Petroleum National Bank, on Friday evening, Jan. 2d, at half past seven o'clock. Permanent officers will then be elected, and other important business transacted. A full and punctual attendance of members is requested.

John R. Martin, Secretary.

Now is the time to join the Literary Association. Members should make it a point, before to morrow evening, to call the matter to the attention of those whose character and influence would be desirable, and whose words, wits, pens or purses could be made serviceable to advance the interests of the Association.

This is not for the benefit of a select few, although the number who will take an active part in the meetings will not probably be very large, but it is a thing in which all citizens are interested,—especially those who have children here to grow up within the sphere and influence of the literary culture and refined taste which such an institution is calculated to beget.

Therefore let those who cannot take an active part in the literary exercises of the Association, "take an interest" by investing something in the Library. Good books are as much better than a flowing purse as the wealth of the mind is more lasting and substantial than those temporary riches which "take to themselves wings and fly away."

Books are suggestive—they breed rapidly, and how often has it been the case that some one caught at a word or a hint from some book, has been the means of turning the whole course of a man's after life into a nobler channel, for the attainment of a higher, nobler, more useful purpose.

Good books are good companions. When a father knows that his son is at his reading room, he can feel that he is safe as in any place, unless we except the home fireside circle. But their influences companions does not cease when they are closed and replaced upon the shelf, they go with the reader to the workshop, to the store, to the farm, to the desk, as teachers or servants, and they go with him to his hours of solitude as companions and as friends, to entertain him with an acquaintance with the great and good of all ages, and to solace him with words of wisdom which are imperishable jewels.

One gentleman has donated seventy five volumes of standard works, which have been shipped per express from Philadelphia. Any one is able to do something for the Library, by giving new or old books, or by giving that which will purchase them.

Now is your time, friends, and in your contributions.

A Card.

Editors Morning Herald

Your reporter was not authorized by me to publish against the employees of the Oil Creek R R Co. Very respectfully yours, &c.

Chas Hartman

Titusville Dec 29, 1865.

Card.

For the benefit of Mr Chas Hartman, I make the following quotation, which if it ever has come under his observation before, he appears to have forgotten

"Who steals my purse, steals trash; tis something, nothing
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been a slave to thousands,
But he, that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that, which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed."

John Fenton,
Commercial Reporter of Titusville Herald

[Thus endeth the controversy.—Ed Herald]

The Furniture Trade.—The Pioneer House in the Oil Region—Extensive Manufacturers.—There is nothing affecting the permanent interests of Titusville which our citizens should regard with more favor, than the healthy growth of manufacturing establishments. The investment of capital in such an enterprise as that in which Messrs Russ & Hard are engaged, benefits the whole community, by affording employment for scores of laborers, making this the centre of a distinct branch of trade, and cheapening the cost of the article manufactured. These are well known and admitted facts, requiring no argument.

We have on several former occasions referred to the manufacturing facilities of this firm. Their extensive workshops are worthy a visit at any time, from those who are seeking for the objects and causes of the prosperity of Titusville. The most ingenious machinery is employed, for the day is past when there can be any prejudice against labor saving machinery. Machines and steam are motive have done so much for moral and social advancement as any other agencies.

But the firm do not rest their trade to articles of their own manufacture. Their show rooms are filled with the most elegant assortments of furniture from the manufactories of Boston, New York and Cleveland, in all the modern styles and there is no community in the cabinet and furniture wares line which cannot be supplied by them upon as desirable terms as any other house in the country. They wish it distinctly understood that they manufacture only such goods as are not included in the varied imported stock, and they are not, under any circumstances, to be undersold.

Mr F. M. Dunham, the foreman of the manufacturing department, is a practical master of some eighteen years experience. He is thoroughly familiar with the wants of this market, and he invites the general public to invest the stock now offered for sale, and if the show rooms do not contain sufficient to fill the bill of every customer, he is prepared to fill the deficiency from the manufactory.

Oil Transportation.—Of the petroleum, crude and refined, transported over the entire line of the Atlantic & Great Western in 1864, there were 565,623 barrels carried eastward, and 109,400 barrels westward. Of the former a large proportion was shipped in the crude state to Europe, and much of the remainder was the refined product of the crude material sent westward, or refined in the oil regions. Of the 109,000 barrels sent west, all but a few stray lots were taken to Cleveland and there refined.

The product for the year is shown by the books of the internal revenue collector, was 3,478,460 gallons of refined petroleum, worth over two and a half million dollars, and paying to the Government, at the tax of twenty cents per gallon, nearly seven hundred thousand dollars.

Telegraphic.—Midnight Dispatch.—For some unknown reason the regular telegraphic reports are not forthcoming, but our readers will be interested in the startling announcement conveyed by the following dispatch, received not via the Western Union Line.

Head Quarters on the Wind Jan 1

Pressed by at midnight Miss Tempus presented me with a beautiful child—one of the most promising of our numerous singing. We have already christened it A. D. 1866.

Your sister, Old Time.

Petroleum Gas on Railways.—The London and North Western Railway have had some of their carriages experimentally lighted with gas made from petroleum. The apparatus containing the gas occupies half the space under one seat, and the experiments were quite satisfactorily lighted as they would have been by ordinary coal gas.

[For the Morning Herald]

The New Year.

Die away! die away, sadly old year,
No tears come to me with thy bier;
And pastors form, on the warrior's bier,
To float the gla home joy.

We've known you many a sorrowing day
Hearing out doubt and hope your way;
But now you're dying and who shall say
Come back again, come back Old Year.

Die away die away into the gloom
Waving your dark and cold plumes,
Die away spectre, make your room
Room for the stranger who comes to day,

With joy on his lip and light in his eye,
Hearing a bride or bringing high,
Chasing away the sad old life
Along thy wake, departing year.

Oh gh I love day! Oh, gh of New Year!
Thou will not be to me with lovely cheer,
We hope we trust a bright and dear
Gift art to the glad New Year.

January 1, 1866. H. P. I.

Amusements.

Bliss Opera House.—On Saturday evening the drama of "Don Cesar de Bazan" was well represented, follow d by the "Mantua Lover." The style of playing was well worthy a much better house. We cannot but admire the pluck of this company in continuing their work though, thus and thus, they seem determined "never to say die,"—that is the kind of vim that succeeds in the oil regions, and we hope they will strike flowing well.

This evening we present the domestic drama entitled the "Mountain Queeten," and the farce "Slasher and Crasher," in which the inimitable Jones will appear as Samp on Slasher and Mrs Bynar as Dinah.

Mr J. I. Jewell will make his first appearance, and will sing "I'll Mrs Bynar, who is always a favorite, will recite a New Years address to the Lords and Commons of Oneida and Mr E. Chapman will sing a comic song.

To morrow evening Messrs F. & E. Chapman will give a benefit when the drama "Ireland As It Is," "The Orphans Gemeny," and the Burlesque "Fombastes Furioso" will be introduced.

We are happy to learn that a few of our liberal and enterprising citizens are preparing to tender a complimentary benefit to Messrs Bynar & Jones on Wednesday evening. Since we have known these gentlemen, they have sustained an unblemished reputation, both upon the stage and in private life. They have invariably refused to pander to a depraved taste, in their representations, and since they have taken the management into their own hands, they have shown a determination to deal justly and honorably by all and to have a good name in Titusville, even if they fail to take away with them a more material evidence of success. Our citizens have exhibited heretofore the only appreciation of merit, and a disposition to do the right thing when occasion requires. Messrs Bynar & Jones deserve a hand-some testimonial—success to the d.

Corinthian Hall.—This evening will be presented the French Historical play of Louis XI., translated by J. B. De Walden, Esq.

Louis was ambitious, passionate and cruel, and when only eighteen, took part in the aristocratic rebellion known as La Pragerie. His plots having failed, he became reconciled to his father, Charles VII., and received the province of Dauphine as his appanage. But getting into another quarrel with his father, he retired to his own province where his intrigues became so violent that his father marched against him, when he fled into Burgundy, to the court of his uncle, Philip the Good. Ascending the throne on the death of his father, he lent all his energies to the destruction of the aristocracy, he had once supported against his father. A coalition of princes was formed against him, and so successful were they that after the battle at Mont Hlery, he offered Dunois advantageous terms of settlement—still continuing his plots, however he at length fell into the power of Charles the Bold who kept him in confinement for three days and then liberated him on a heavy price. As he became old, the fear of assassination took such hold of him as to deprive him of the power of mind and to insist his death. He later years were spent at the court of Louis le Jonne, under the close control of his physician, Coitier.

Mr Conklin will appear as Louis XI., and Mrs Conklin as the Dauphin (fill of the heir presumptive of the crown).

The performance will conclude with the farce of the Rough Diamond, Mr Davenport taking the character of Captain Job, and Miss Josephine Tyson as the rough jewel, Margery.

Charity Fair.—The closing of the Catholic fair was a perfect ovation. The hall was densely crowded and everyone seemed to enjoy the entertainments and of mirth and festivity. The brilliant display of fancy articles on every side was very tempting, but the fascination of the bright eyes surpass all the rest causing all the gentlemen to be liberal with the champs.

The grand feature of the evening was the charming little drama of the "Village Queen," performed by the children of the Catholic Institute. It would have done credit to older heads and more experienced actors. The applause was in order and genuine. Miss Menard is Mathurina, the old grand mother, could not have been rendered better on any stage, while little Ella Beale fairly outshone herself, more especially in the song of sweet sixteen. Doubtless, with practice and care and proper natural culture she will be able to take rank with the first talent in the country. Some of the gentlemen presented her with a large frosted cake magnificently decorated and surmounted by the goddess of liberty, as a mark of appreciation of her talents.

The fair was concluded by the various lotteries and an auction sale of the balance of the goods. We are requested to state that No 61 drew the prize for the $100 silver tea set, which the fortunate winner can have by applying at the store of Mr T. Goodwin, on Spring street. Owing to the time occupied in the sale and other unforeseen circumstances, Father Mignault postponed his lecture on "Ireland and the Irish" for a future occasion, of which the public will be duly apprised.

—Since writing the above we have learned that Mr Duffy, the fortunate winner of the $100 silver tea set, has liberally donated the same to the charity for which the fair was held. The net proceeds will amount to about $1,100.

New Variety Theatre.—"Another Rich mond in the field!" With the Bliss Opera House and the New Theatre at Corinthian Hall both in successful operation, plucky must be the manager who would enter the lists for a share of patronage from the amusement seeking public. Messrs Pomeroy & Saxton have leased the new building on Franklin street, lately used as a Shooting Gallery, and to morrow night, offer their first entertainment. See advertisement.

Balance the Books, gentlemen and ladies, balance the books, at least once a year. Now is the time when good resolutions are made, but whatever resolutions you make, don't fail to make one, that you will devote all your energies to know just how you stand with the world, and to pay all you owe, and at just the earliest moment possible. Especially your small bills, as they are often owing to persons of limited means. A great amount of good is done by sometimes discharging a small debt. The money that is paid in the morning perhaps before night has paid a claim of debts from one to another. Mr A pays Mr B a hundred dollars, B then can pay what he owes C and so down the alphabet, till perhaps it gets to F which stands for Printer. Wouldn't that be splendid? Try it.

Fire at Shaffer.

Shaffer Farm, Dec 27, 1865.

Editors Morning Herald

In your issue of to day in mention of our loss, &c, at the late fire. The statement is so different to what it should be, we would wish you to make correction as follows and oblige.

Kellogg & Fernald, saloon business, loss $4,000, insurance $1,000. You report to day Kellogg & Falkner $2,000 and no insurance in place of above. Please make correction and oblige.

Yours Respectfully,
Kellogg & Fernald

Daily Production of Oil.—The Rand Times says the following is the reported daily production of the several localities in the oil regions, as given to our reporter upon personal visitation and inquiry.

	Barrels
Pithole Creek,	7,385
Oil Creek,	5,000
Bennehoff Run,	1,400
Allegheny River,	1,000
Cross Run, Hickory &c,	1,100
Sugar Creek,	150
Cherry Run,	600
French Creek,	20
Other localities,	300
Total,	17,040

From this amount however, we would make some material reductions, as we do not think the total production will exceed 11,000 barrels. Every locality and almost every producing well has been visited by our reporter and a fair report given as far as could be obtained. There is, however, a natural tendency to exaggerate in reporting the yield of wells, for which allowance should be made.

Take Notice!—Strayed or Stolen.—The man who took my valise by mistake, or forgetting from the corner of the Franklin street crossing, on Tuesday evening, is requested to return the same to the Herald office where he will be suitably rewarded for his trouble. The papers in the valise are of no special value to the owner, but worth less to any one else.
